County school buses to have law escort

Safety in transportation of school children was discussed in a brief talk by Russell Elliott, new president of board of supervisors, who attended the County School Board meeting Saturday.

School Board President Ed Cato remarked that the new sheriff, Fred Curet, had already cleared his department's complete cooperation and Curet, who was asked to attend, promised to supply escorts on all routes including U.S. 90, Bayou Ladore, Hwy 90, and Hwy 90, to protect school children traveling at the time of day escorts would be required.

Curet also promised to conduct driver training classes for school bus drivers whenever he was satisfied at what time and what schools the changes could be conducted.

A delegation of seven bus drivers also attended saying the drivers' salary of $100 per month was inadequate - that the route given in bad condition and the salary was lower than in other sections. Also that they had to furnish gasoline.

Mercier edits Register

Rev. Adrian Moret, co-cs of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Moret of Bay City Drive, assumed his new duties last week as editor and business manager of the Mississippi Register, weekly newspaper published by the Catholic Diocese of Natchez-Jackson.

No successor Rev. Bernard F. Ley was leaving next month for Washington, D.C., to become executive director of the Bishops' Committee for Economic and International Affairs.

Bishop Joseph Brimai also appointed Father Moret as co-pastoral director of the diocesan preparatory committee, assistant vocations director, director of the Bureau of Information and Bishop's secretary for ecumenical affairs, assignments formerly held by Father Ley.

The new editor, who was an official member of Our Lady of the Gulf Chancery from 1957 to 1960, was working on the doctoral program at Catholic University in Washington when news of his appointment just before Christmas.

Born in Hattiesburg, he prepared at St. Joseph Seminary, St. Bonifacius, La., and studied philosophy at theology of North American College in Rome, Italy, where he was ordained Dec. 10, 1958.

After three years at OLG he returned from the diocese to work with the Society of St. (Continued on Page 8-A.)

Study ordered on sub-division law

Proposed revisions to the county's sub-division ordinance were referred to the area development committee of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce after a public hearing before the board of supervisors Monday.

Mr. W. F. Ducomb, committee chairman, was called by the board president, Russell Elliott, to speak on the study, seeking advice from residents, contractors, health officials and other individuals who might contribute to a well-rounded ordinance.

Elliott declared the changes, creating four different classes of sub-divisions, were ambitious. They had been presented last fall to the old board of supervisors and were said to follow those used in some comparable Louisiana parishes.

Supervisors clear port legal fees, dredge bill

A $7,500 bill from port and harbor attorney Gerald Cox and Michael Hale for services rendered in connection with the new airport was approved by the board of supervisors Monday.

day. It had been held over by the board which went out of office Dec. 31.

Supervisors also approved payment of $2,601 recommended by the port and harbor commission for work at the Mullett Bay port project.

A recommendation from the outgoing port and harbor commission that Michael Baker, Jr., Inc., be retained as consulting engineers for the first phase of airport construction was referred to the new port group for its opinion. Baker's contract for port and airport work, which expired last fall, was extended until February to give the new supervisors an opportunity to consider the situation.

C. A. Russ, III, vice president of the supervisors, was instructed to set up a meeting with Baker officials late next week. A letter was received from Phillip Koonce, Baker executive, suggesting several changes in the contract with the county.

Supervisors voted to disband the rifle shooting range at Jackson Ridge for the present after Sheriff Fred Curet reported the county's bulldozer operator for the sanitary landfill there was upset about excessive indiscriminate firing. Curet said he would try to stake out some safe boundaries for the range.

On the motion of Board Supervisor Jacob Cuervas, it was voted to direct Pete Walker, supervisor for the county's MTO security patrol, to relocate the patrol's gas tank, equipment, radio, etc., to the property of Board 1 Supervisor Russel Russell. Elliott, president of the board, suggested that Walker advise the patrolmen to get in touch with the new supervisors and coordinate their efforts with what the officials want.

With the acceptance of two local banks as county depositories this year, the board voted to keep the Bank 1, 2 and 3 road and bridge funds in Han-

on teacher pay

One hurdle before the Mississippi legislature is guaranteed at each session. It is a plea for more pay for teachers in the state's public schools. During the 1967 elections all candidates agreed on one thing: more money for the teachers, although not always did the candidates specify where the money was coming from.

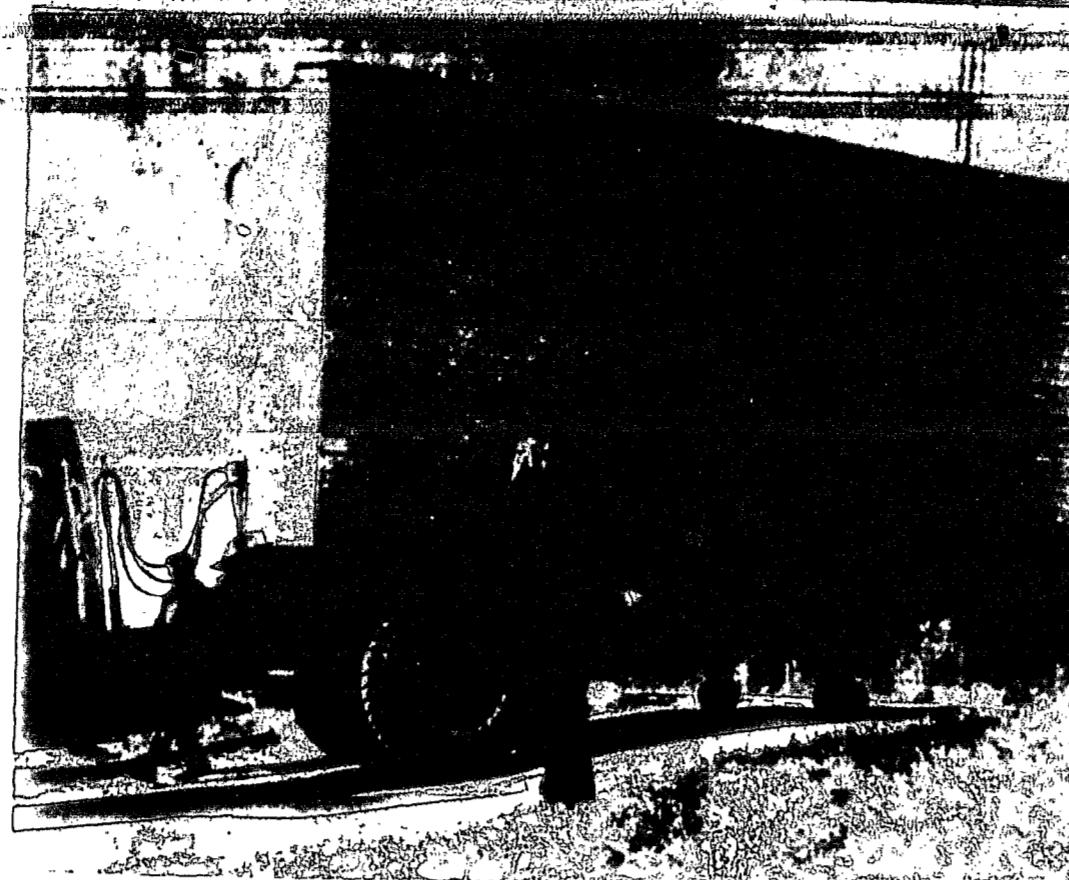

A Dec. 31 release by the Mississippi Education Association gives the mechanical picture of teachers' pay in Mississippi. The national average is given as $7,296, and the southeastern states as $6,295, while pay for the teachers in Mississippi averages only $3,611 per year.

It is fine for Mississippi politicians and others defending Mississippi to "point with pride" to Mississippi having the lowest crime rate but being in last place on teachers' pay is something else again. And Mississippi doesn't hold this honor by any slim margin. An across the board increase of $1,000 a year—a round figure frequently used in campaigns—would climb us one step up the ladder to 49th place and then only $15 per year ahead of Arkansas.

In the past, efforts to increase teacher's pay tended to be given serious consideration only late in the legislative session. With the legislators already committed on other projects the house and senate have made some improvement for teachers but never enough to be in hailing distance of any other state.

This year we hope the governor, John Bell Williams, will present his educational program early in the session, and that the appropriate house and senate committees will push hard for early enactment, thus assuring that proper consideration will be given to the source of the funds.

All in all, the $1,000 across the board pay jump, perhaps in two stages, doesn't look so round, more egg shaped, when even if passed it would only push Mississippi to the 49th rung and then by a mere $15.

"A Conservative View"

by James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON. Now and then a fateful little sentence comes on tiptoe through the news—softly, softly, making no rustle—and the hair on the back of your neck goes prickle-prickle. The superstition used to be that a rabbit was crossing your grave. Just such a sentence crept into President Johnson's message on the international balance of payments.

"More than ever before," said the president, "this is one world—in economic affairs as in every other way."

Probably the reference to "one world" was no more than passing rhetoric, mere bunting to dress up a speech, for the rest of the President's message was surely nationalistic. Yet one wonders. Back in the fall, Mr. Johnson asked for Senate ratification of two more of those giddy United Nations conventions, and Wisconsin's Senator William Proxmire has said that willy-nilly he will see to it that the Senate has a chance in 1968 to vote them up or down.

One hates to sound darkly suspicious, but when the President of the United States asserts that ours is "one world in every way," it is time to hook the shutters and check the locks on the doors. Mr. Johnson's mind has a sort of beltway about; he travels on two or three lanes at once. When he asks approval of these UN conventions, he is asking nothing less than an annex to the Constitution, for treaties, once ratified, become part of the supreme law of the land.

It may not be amiss, therefore, to take a fresh look at these instruments of international law. The first of them, adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1952, is a convention intended to insure "the political rights of women." In substance, it binds the ratifying nations to agree that women shall have the right to vote and to hold office in their countries on equal terms with men.

The second, adopted by the International Labor Organization in 1957, is a pact on "the abolition of forced labor." It would bind the signatories to suppress, and not to use, forced labor as punishment for the expression of political views, for economic development, as punishment for participation in a strike, or as a means of racial or religious discrimination.

At the last count, 53 nations had ratified the convention on women's rights and 78 had ratified the convention on forced labor. On their face, the two treaties seem innocuous. Senator Proxmire, who made 175 speeches last year in favor of ratification, says they embody no more than already is embodied in the Constitution and laws of the United States. If formal Senate approval would gain us some Brownie points in international good will, why not vote the treaties into law?

The solid reasons for opposing these two conventions—and others that may come after—were spelled out in September by Eberhard P. Deutsch, of New Orleans, in a brilliant presentation to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Deutsch is chairman of the American Bar Association's standing committee on such instruments. What he said, in essence, is that treaties among nations should deal solely with relations among nations; they ought never to deal with matters of internal law.

The political rights of women in, say, Switzerland, Sweden or Peru simply are no business of the United States. Conditions of internal labor (we are not talking here of the slave trade) ought not to be fixed by international treaty. It is not enough to say that "women should have equal rights" or that "forced labor is terrible." Doubtless these are laudable views; they have been embedded in U.S. law for some time. But they are not the stuff of which treaties are made.

Not, that is, unless we truly are prepared for the "one world" concept, in which human rights are decreed by a World Court rather than by our own courts. Various agencies of the UN are working in precisely this direction, with persistent help from the State Department. Other UN conventions are pending that deal with marriage, holidays with pay, and pregnancy leave for working mothers.

Who ever supposed these matters were matters for world law? The UN's global thinkers, that's who. Come the millennium, they may be right. But come 1968, the U.S. Senate would do well to vote the pending conventions down.

Streets open, mayor urges careful driving

In spite of heavy rains and continued wet weather, all city streets are open and passable to traffic but not at high speeds, Mayor John A. Scarfide said Wednesday.

Scarfide said he had driven over all the streets Tuesday and said that although the streets are passable he urged citizens to drive carefully.

He said the city is trying to get as many trouble spots fixed as possible and that street crews are busy opening up drains causing flooding.

The mayor said the city is doing everything it can to keep the roads open and where this proved impossible instructions have been issued to install flare lights or barricades.

No special maintenance program has been put into effect as no additional funds, outside the maintenance operating fund, are available. Scratching the bottom of the barrel the city has engaged one extra grader and it is working in the West Bay area.

Scafide said he feels confident that by the end of next week the city will have developed another street repair program to put before the people.

And they started this week by winning six of seven games Tuesday night, the only loss being by 13. Stanfield's five who had compiled a streak of 28 consecutive victories under coach Billy Murphy.

The Tigs lost to Notre Dame 45-60 but the varsity girls toughed off a late rally and won 26-24 after holding the lead throughout the game. Mike Gammill was high scorer with 15 points. Sylvan Ladner and Anna Vincenzini got 14 each.

Games coming up are: Stanfield, Friday, Cor Jesu at New Orleans; Saturday, Our Lady of Victory in Rosenthal Gym; Bay High, Friday, at Monroe.

Peace factors from Hanoi

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The White House has not been reaching hopefully to the recent rash of truce feelers from Hanoi for two reasons: first, the President does not want to get bogged down in long, inconclusive haggling in Vietnam in an election year; second, the Hanoi regime broke off talks with a U.S. representative as recently as last November, and nothing has happened in the war to indicate any reason for it to change now.

When General Eisenhower was elected in 1952—partly because of his promise to end the war in Korea—time and circumstances were on his side. The North Koreans had been beaten militarily and were dependent on Chinese troops to stave off a surrender. Eisenhower as a famous general had the prestige to say to the public that "Papa knows best." As the first GOP president to be elected since 1928, he had the support of the largely Republican press across the nation.

Johnson has no such factors in his favor in 1968. The public, while weary of the war, is divided on what should be done about it, and is haunted by the memory of the appeasement of Hitler by Britain that preceded World War II. North Vietnam has not been defeated militarily. And the President has none of the hero's aura which made it impossible for Ike to do anything, in Korea or anywhere else.

On top of this, North Vietnam has coldly rejected virtually every overture made by the United States or other governments.

The November negotiation actually reached a stage where a U.S. representative was able to meet with a North Vietnamese representative. This was a highly secret conference given the code name of "Marigold." It was arranged through the Poles in Warsaw and had the blessings of Moscow.

But despite the willingness and even eagerness of the Johnson administration to negotiate, and despite the pressure of the Poles and Russians, the Hanoi representative suddenly broke off the talks.

The administration feels that if Hanoi now genuinely desired to discuss peace, these talks could be reopened—without any fanfare about "peace feelers." The world-wide publicity given the new Hanoi feelers thus may indicate they are simply for propaganda purposes, designed to fuel the doves in the United States and make Johnson's reelection impossible.

The one factor which is causing the U.S. to weigh these new peace hints carefully is the possibility that the North Vietnamese believe they now have a chance to win a place in a coalition government in Saigon. The two new elected leaders of South Vietnam, Thieu and Vice President Ky, are so bitter against each other that they hardly speak. Their government has shown no signs of working any miracles; graft is as rampant as ever, little progress has been made in pacification of the countryside. So the Viet Cong still can hope to win recognition and power.

Politically, this would be a bitter pill, not only for Thieu and Ky but President Johnson as well. Too many people recall that when Bobby Kennedy first proposed bringing the Viet Cong into the Saigon government he was derided by Vice President Humphrey, obviously speaking for Johnson, as wanting to invite the fox into the henhouse. Thus it would be difficult for the President to issue such an invitation now.

Saigon feuding

President Thieu and Vice President Ky of South Vietnam have been quarreling over everything from government policies to office space.

Shortly before Christmas, Ky telephoned President Thieu's office. Thieu's secretary irritated Ky by calling him "General" instead of "Vice President." Ky became absolutely furious when the President refused to return the call. In a rage, Ky marched out of his office and didn't come back for a week.

Ever since, Ky has been spending more time amusing himself than worrying about his official duties.

Percy's expense fund

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois has held desperate discussions with his aides and advisors as to how to overcome the bad publicity over his $100,000 slush fund.

He solicited the money from businessmen to help pay his office expenses, though his predecessor, Sen. Paul Douglas, lived on his Senate salary and was able to represent Illinois without hitting up anyone for expense money.

Percy happens to be a millionaire who, at the age of 29, became president of Bell and Howell, the camera company.

His office refuses to give any information on Percy's current income and assets. As an officer of the company, however, he was required to list his Bell and Howell holdings. In 1965, his last year with the company, he listed 103,096 shares of Bell and Howell stock. He reportedly sold 21,079 shares for a half-a-million dollars in 1966. At today's prices, the remaining shares are worth more than $7,250,000.

It would appear that Percy, if he is going to run an extravagant office can afford to pay the extra expenses out of his own pocket. His advisors we are told, agree. They have urged him to cancel the slush fund, pay back the contributors and take care of his own bills if they continue to run above the government allowance.

Adam wants a deal

Emboldened Adam Clayton Powell has sent quiet feelers to the White House, offering a deal if President Johnson will order the Justice Department to call off the grand jury investigation into his finances. Powell is far more worried about what the grand jury may find out about his money manipulations than what the courts will do about his House seat.

Visitors to Biloxi have brought back word from Powell that he will return to the United States and lead a campaign against Negro extremism—if the grand jury investigation is dropped. He is willing to tour Negro areas and speak out against such militants as Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown.

Powell requested that his offer be passed on to the White House. So far at least, the White House has shown no interest in making a deal.

The Harlem Congressman did make such a deal, once, with the Eisenhower administration. Though a Democrat, he supported Eisenhower for reelection in 1956 at a time when his finances also were under investigation, and the case against Powell later was dropped. Some of his employees were convicted on charges of income tax evasion as a result of the same investigation, but Powell himself came out of it as free and jaunty as days.

Jr. auxiliary project

Test hearing of 1,620,
send 96 for more care

Ninety-six students out of the 1,620 tested for hearing capabilities were referred to their family doctors for further examination, according to Mrs. Terence Peckay, hearing test chairman, reporting last Monday to Bay-Waveland Junior Auxiliary in the Webb Community Center.

Members spent 198 hours on the program. All students at Bay High School and St. Rose de Lima Schools were tested along with the first through fourth grades of North Bay Elementary, Our Lady of the Grotto, Christ Episcopal Day School, Waveland Elementary and St. Claro's Schools. Members are now to work with various parent-teacher groups in continuing the eye examinations begun last year.

After hearing that approximately $800 was raised from their Charity Ball last November, members unanimously elected Mrs. Walda Dainger as new treasurer. She replaced Mrs. Jay Lacoste, III, who will accompany her husband on his return to Okla. Miss to complete work on his master's degree. The Courthouse beautification program is making good progress according to Mrs. Walter D. Weaver, Jr., chairman. A boxwood hedge has been planted on either side of the walk, existing shrubs trimmed around the monuments and new shrubs planted on the grounds. Extra large shrubs are on order and will be planted on arrival. This will complete the program.

A letter from Warren County president, Hancock County Rotaract Children's Center project, said a special thank you had come to Walter D. Weaver, Jr., and Jack Sharkey of MTP for their efforts in this regard.

Mrs. Phil Kergosan is chairman of the Hancock County Rotaract Children's Center project. After outlining the success of the center's Christmas program, Mrs. Kergosan said her committee had worked with the children helping them make Christmas gifts and that the Junior Auxiliary had bought tickets to the New Orleans Symphony concert for the students. "The children were simply raptured at the music," she reported.

Through funds raised by Mississippi Test Facility management groups, the auxiliary was able to buy several Christmas gifts for each child in the center. Mrs. Kergosan said a special thank you had come to Walter D. Weaver, Jr., and Jack Sharkey of MTP for their efforts in this regard.

At Harrison Central

County schools split tourney honors

Harrison County cagers enjoyed strong competition but both boys and girls championship trophies went to Hancock County teams, North Central's Hawks and Bay High's Tigorettes, in the Harrison Central Invitational Tournament last weekend in the new Harrison Central gym.

Although Bay High's Tigers were eliminated in the first round, Anthony Ladnor was selected to the all-conference team for his Neocico-like performance which drew a romp from the jubilous Hawks who held for the game "I hereby confer the name of Gogo on Anthony Ladnor". Ladnor scored 21 points in the losing effort. Also making the all-star team were Grog Shaw and Clyde Moran of North Central while four Bay High girls were named to the girls' squad, Ann Portor, Sherry Doan and Dorothy Mitchell.

In the finals Saturday night North Central escaped to a 76-75 win but Bay High's Tigorettes were hard pressed to defeat Place Christian's Fighting Pilotes, 41-40, in overtime after overcoming a 10 early 6-0 lead by the Pano Lancers. At the end of the first period Place Christian had 6-4 and at half-time it was deadlocked 18-18. Place Christian again took the lead 9-8 at the end of the third quarter and at the final buzzer was 37-37. Then Portina and Mary Ann Smith each connected for field goals for four points while the Pilotes were held to three in the overtime period. It was coach Billy Sills' ninth consecutive win raising their season total to 44-1, best in the Gulf Coast Athletic Conference. Portina led the scoring with 16 points, Smith got 13, Noel Phillippe 8, and Marsha Comprado 4 while Marilyn Cuvas made 8 for the losers.

However, should both Trapani and Anthony win this week will be a battle for the lead following Sunday when the two battle on the hardwood. Foggy flight

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ralph have returned home after spending a week at Homestead AFB, Fla., where they were guests of their son, Capt. Joseph Ralph, 2nd Lt., Ralph and children Eric and Jan. The Ralphs traveled to Miami on a huge Boeing January aircraft, and had a very enjoyable flight, but ran into fog from Jacksonville to New Orleans on the return trip and spent their last 20 minutes in the air circling around and around, trying to recover consciousness to land.

Ralph and John Burdette took their granddaughter, Mary Kay, a good example of Captain Blance and broad connector to Disney World. The new baby, as yet to be named, arrived shortly after midnight Tuesday, and is their 13th grandchild. Mary Kay, is of course, the proud father.

we care

If it isn't easy to buy bean coffee!

Nowadays, very few stores offer you bean coffee.

Why does A&P still offer coffee in the bean?

Basically, because "We Care."

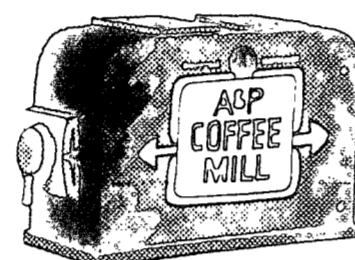

Specifically, because we know these facts:

The coffee bean is nature's seal that holds the flavor.

Once that seal is broken by grinding, flavor fades...

NO MATTER HOW IT'S PACKAGED.

The shorter the time between grinding the beans and brewing your coffee, the greater the flavor.

So if you want the finest cup of "The Think Drink" you've ever tasted, buy and brew one of A&P's three Bean Coffee blends... Eight O'Clock, Red Circle or Bokar.

Not every store can offer you custom-ground bean coffee.

A&P can and does.

Shouldn't A&P be your store?

MRS. EDWARD J. SHUMSKI, JR.

Shumski-Torrence vows exchanged

The wedding of Miss Dolly Torrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Torrence of New Orleans, and Edward J. Shumski, Jr., son of Mr. Paul Con of Bay St. Louis and the late Captain Shumski, was an ovation of mid-December at Our Lady of the Rosary Church in New Orleans.

Miss Leslie Leclerc was maid of honor and William Umeki of Bay St. Louis was best man for her brother. Usheiros were Eugene Torrence, father of the bride, and Alvin Bopp, the groom's cousin.

A reception followed at the Royal Orleans Hotel. The couple is now residing in Hattiesburg where Mr. Shumski has started work on his doctor's degree at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Among out-of-town guests attending included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Church, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Gandy and sons and their wives.

Russes host dinner for appointee

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Russ, III, were hosts at a buffet supper Sunday evening at their Pearlington home in compliment to Harry E. Wilson, new Beat 1 member of the Hancock County port and harbor commission.

Guests included port and harbor commissioners, new members of the board of supervisors, attorneys for the two couples and their wives.

Mr. Wilson, a native of El Paso, Tex., has been associated for the last 16 years with Edmar S. Nelson Co., New Orleans engineers and architects who designed the bridge across the Mississippi Test Facility and did some work on the Harrison County industrial highway.

He was born at the first meeting of the Port of New Orleans, and he and his wife, Mrs. Patricia, have a home in Biloxi and they have son Michael, 17, and daughter, Elizabeth, 2.

Friday evening, the Russes entertained for the new sheriff's wife and their wives assigned to the Pearlington area. The first proceeded to the Pearlington group meeting of the Hancock Chamber of Commerce's Area Development Committee.

Rev. Richard Somers will officiate at the wedding of Miss Karen Elaine Bilbo and Elden Ray Pennington at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Our Lady of Gulf Catholic Church.

A reception will follow immediately after the wedding at 247 St. Charles St.
